About the Manaslu Circuit trek overview with your local guide for 2022-23

Manaslu and Tsum Valley trek is one of the restricted trekking routes in Nepal that is opened for trekkers recently and become a popular trekking destination due to its incredible beauty of nature and cultural variations.

Since this route has been declared a restricted area then trekkers cannot trek by themselves. You need to be part of the group or at least 2 people in a group for trekking in the Manaslu region along with the local guide, having a local trekking guide for this trek or any other trek can make something special and hassle-free with depth knowledge and local experience.

Taking a local expert means learning more and enjoying the trek and what it has to offer by knowing everything in depthwise, it's always a good idea to see if your trekking crew has a local person on board. It's not the same as speaking the language and asking for directions.

It is more about knowing the place, history, knowing what and who is around the next corner, what happens where and the stories a place has to tell, and also what are the things that we might not do and what to do while trekking through the local villages and following their community aspect to respect.

Hiring a local guide might impact the community positively it helps the community directly by employing them, so it is advantageous to hire a local guide to support the people, and it's a community!

Wondering how much should I expect to pay for hiring a local guide for the Manaslu trek. See the best offer that has been verified by the Nepal government,

- A lienholder trekking guide with decades of experienced costs USD 35 per day
- A porter cum guide (who has a guiding license) costs USD 30 per day
- A porter to help your backpack is USD 28 per day

Note: Above the prices include all the meals, accommodations, insurance, and necessary trekking equipment for the guide or porter.

When to Travel

Manaslu is an amazing trekking destination as it offers a wide range of sensational mountain scenery, waterfalls, ancient monasteries with wheeled prayer flags, Alpine lakes, spectacular local villages, wilderness, and flora and fauna at any time of the year, trekking in March, April, May during the Spring and September, October and November during the Autumn are the best time of the year.

Winter can be a bit chilled and a very high chance of snowfall and weather leads to extremely cold at high elevations, trekking in Monsoon is likely to rain almost every day and most of the time shower with clouds that bothers the views, but you can still enjoy at this time but not as comfortable weather as Autumn and Spring.

Spring and Autumn are the peak season for trekking and mountaineering in Nepal likewise, Monsoon and winter slow down and a very less number of travelers visit Nepal for trekking and climbing the high mountain.

Required Trekking Permits

The Manaslu and Tsum Valley trek is within a restricted region of Nepal that requires special trekking permits to access this route for all travelers except Locals.
